In

School of Business

Position: Dissertation Chairs and Readers

Department: School of Business

Overview: Belhaven's School of Business seeks part-time faculty who are experienced scholar-practitioners, mentors, and doctoral committee leaders to fill part-time positions as dissertation chairs or readers. These contributing faculty members will report to the DBA Program Director. Part-time faculty are primarily responsible for student research mentoring and direct student engagement of research design and approach in the DBA program.

Faculty members educate graduate students by effectively and proficiently using online technology and resources so that knowledge, information, feedback, and critique are imparted to and shared with students in timely, thoughtful, carefully formulated, and well written communications.

Responsibilities:

DBA Adjunct Faculty members' primary responsibility will be to chair and/or serve as second members on doctoral committees as methodologists and/or content experts. Infrequently, based on student enrollment, adjunct faculty may be invited to instruct content courses or to instruct research methodology courses, which they are credentialed to teach.

Qualifications

- Terminal degree in Business Administration (PhD, DBA, DM) or a related field from an accredited institution is required, Experience as a research methodologist is preferred – emphasis on quantitative methodology.
- Experience working in an online instructional setting at the graduate or doctoral level
- Strong research methodology background in quantitative or qualitative methods in research (preference given to quantitative).
- Candidates should possess a record of intellectual and professional contributions to the business field, including experience in the practice of business.
- Applicants must be able to fully support the University Vision, Mission, and Statement of Faith as set forth at: <https://www.belhaven.edu/about/mission/>
